Stadium story twist: city offers $6 million loan -- with strings attached

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A deal to build a Triple-A baseball stadium on West Sacramento's waterfront was teetering again yesterday, as local officials waited to see if baseball promoters would accept a new financial arrangement. City officials report that they have been told that options to buy land needed for the stadium expire this Friday, lending some urgency to the negotiations.

A new $6 million loan from the city to River City Baseball was approved last week, said Mayor Christopher Cabaldon. But it remains to be seen whether baseball promoters Warren Smith and Bob Hemond, and team owner Art Savage, will find the strings attached to be acceptable.

The loan is necessary to keep stadium construction on track in the face of a lawsuit filed April 9 by the anonymous "Friends of Sacramento County," challenging construction on environmental grounds.

"With the lawsuit, it's almost impossible to issue bonds of any kind," Cabaldon said yesterday. "After a lot of debate, the council agreed to advance the $6 million needed to purchase and clear the property, so construction could proceed on schedule despite the lawsuit."

Cabaldon termed this a "major change" to the previous agreement, and said the city wasn't willing to advance the money without a couple of conditions attached.

"Anything can happen" to endanger the project, he said. "We felt it was important to have two things in place. We needed to collateralize the loan and make sure River City Baseball had adequate assets including the land, to secure it. And we needed to make sure in the agreement that this was an exclusive negotiation between us and River City Baseball. We want to make sure they will not negotiate with any other jurisdiction while the loan was outstanding."

The city of Sacramento is sponsoring a competing Triple-A baseball proposal still in its early stages.

At Wednesday's late-night council meeting, a lawyer representing River City Baseball said he didn't have the authority to accept or reject the new terms. And as of Tuesday morning, city officials were still waiting to hear whether River City Baseball would agree to the terms – or whether they might even walk away from the West Sacramento site.

The baseball group could not immediately be reached for comment.

Meanwhile, the attorney for the Yolo County lawsuit from the Friends of Sacramento County has obtained a two-week delay before the first court hearing. The new hearing date is May 17.

"We did oppose the extension," said Cabaldon. "We would like to move as quickly as possible through this."

Cabaldon added that he is confident that the lawsuit has no merit, but that it has succeeded in endangering the time-line for the stadium project.

"I am still hopeful that West Sacramento is the best site for the stadium," said Cabaldon.

Search firm hired to find new West Sacramento police chief

■ Current deputy chief is candidate for new top cop job

The West Sacramento City Council last week approved city manager Joe Goeden's request to hire a search firm to conduct a recruitment for a new police chief. Current chief Larry Gore has announced his retirement as of August 1 of this year.

The council approved a plan to use up to $19,500 for the contract with search firm DMG Maximus, which is currently providing similar services to the cities of San Marina, Salinas and San Diego. The company promises to provide a written recruitment report midway through the process.

The contact states that DMG Maximus will not incur more than $14,500 in fees and $5,000 in expenses, and payment will come from the city manager's contingency fund.

The department's current deputy chief, Tom Hoffman, is an applicant for the chief's position.

"I would be very interested in serving as the next chief," said Hoffman, 45. "I believe the search is the right thing to do and I'm excited to be a candidate."

Hoffman has 25 years law enforcement experience, including 20 years at Inglewood's police department in Southern California. He was recruited by new chief Gore in 1994 as a captain, and was promoted to the department's new deputy chief position in 1996. He lives in Folsom with his wife and two children.

Summit plans SIP development

Summit Commercial Properties, which purchased 627 acres of the Southport Industrial Park in West Sacramento last September, has announced a partnership with Buzz Oates Enterprises to develop a 364,000 square foot distribution center at the park. The company plans to start construction in May and ultimately produce 10.5 million square feet of office and industrial space, the company stated.

"This joint venture with Buzz Oates is the first in a series of partnerships we're structuring with the premier Sacramento developers to create a variety of industrial, office, call center and wet-lab projects," said Jack Mahoney, president of Summit, in a press release. "By combining a ground zero location like Southport with the cream of the local development talent, we can produce the best product in a highly desirable location at a price that's competitive with anything in the region."

Summit bought the property from a group including Oates, the Southport Investors Limited Partnership, the Massie family and West Sacramentan Frank Ramos. Not included was a 40-acre parcel retained by the Southport Industrial Park Partnership, on which a 444,000 square foot warehouse is nearly complete. The facility has been leased to distributor Crum & Crum.

Tuttle accepts regional labor position

West Sacramento resident Cindy Tuttle has been appointed to the position of executive secretary of the Sacramento Central Labor Council AFL-CIO, which represents 86 affiliated unions with a combined membership of 95,000 people in six counties.

"Cindy has a grass roots style of political organizing," said Jim Murphy, the organization's vice president and president of the Sacramento Sierra Building Trades Council, in a press release. "Her expertise was a major factor in our political victories last year. The energy and enthusiasm she creates have directly influenced the growth of the Labor Council."

Tuttle is a former city council member and mayor of West Sacramento.

ABOUT TOWN:

Politics ran in the family

BILLI HANLON

Billi Hanlon is the newly elected president of the West Sacramento Democratic Club. She is a lifelong resident of West Sacramento and her parents moved here way back in the fall of 1950.

"My father grew up in Chicago," recalled Billi, "and since he was the only boy in his family, he was the one who always got stuck shoveling the snow in the winter. So during the war, when he stopped over in Sacramento for 24 hours on his way overseas, he noticed how warm the climate was and swore that one day he would return. He met my mother at a dance after the war, and it wasn't long before they both agreed that moving to Sacramento would be a great adventure and they ended up buying one of the first homes built in Westfield Village."

Billi has many fond memories of her father, Frank Hanlon, who died in 1986, and of her mother, Queenie, who passed away just a few years ago.

"Both of my parents were very well-read and held strong opinions on a number of subjects," remembered Billi. "My father was a union organizer back in the 1930s and 1940s, and he was always a champion of the working man. He was an electrician for the Southern Pacific Railroad and he also got his journeyman refrigeration papers before he moved to California. He liked to joke that when he was stationed in the deserts of North Africa during World War Two, he and his friends were the only ones who had cold beer to drink."

Politics were always a subject of discussion in the Hanlon house and Billi learned early in life that if you don't want to be part of the problem, then you need to get involved in finding solutions.

"When I was young," said Billi, "there were always candidates signs stuck in our yard and political bumper stickers on our car. My father was also an officer of his union, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and politics and what was going on in the country and world were always a part of our family discussions. I can even remember walking precincts with my parents when I was only three years old."

Billi attended local elementary schools and graduated from James Marshall High School in 1969. She went on to Sacramento City College and Sacramento State College, where she earned a masters degree in psychology. She currently works as an analyst for the State of California.

"When I was in school," said Billi, "I protested the Vietnam war and when I got a little older, I went to Washington D.C. and marched for the right of women to have safe and legal abortions. I've always believed in standing up for what I believe in and having the courage of my convictions."

"I think Billi is going to make a fine president of the West Sacramento Democratic Club," said John Ohlson, who was one of the original founders of the organization. "She's very bright and full of energy and new ideas, and that is just what an organization like ours needs. Her parents were two of our earliest members and they did a lot of hard work on our behalf, and I'm sure Billi will follow in their footsteps. We currently have about 35 to 40 members, and I also think Billi being the president is going to help us increase our membership."

"I've always been a Democrat," said Billi with a smile, "and unless you make $200,000 a year, you can't afford not to be one. As president of the West Sacramento Democratic Club, I hope to encourage community involvement in local issues, increase our fundraising efforts, and get more people to join our organization. Statewide, Democrats are currently in pretty good shape, but the presidential primary has been moved up from June to March, and that's another important area that Democrats need to start thinking about before too long."

When Billi isn't busy with politics, she and her husband, Robert Foster, who is also a graduate of West Sacramento schools, like to travel. They've been to such faraway places as Australia, New Zealand, and Egypt.

Billi is also a big movie fan and Robert enjoys nostalgia drag racing, a sport he has competed in all over the Western United States.

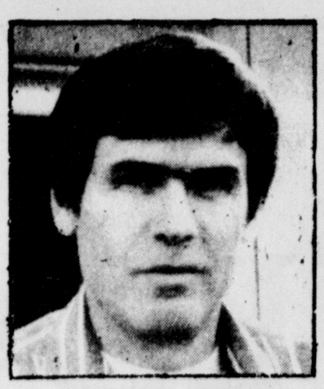
School massacre creates more questions than answers

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Tuesday before last, more than a dozen high school students in Littleton, Colorado were slaughtered by a couple of their crazed classmates. As the police slowly (some say too slowly) made their way into Columbine High School, parents waited in agony to see if their child was among the dead. Most of the young bodies, including those of the shooters, were found in the school's library, a place where students are supposed to go to reflect and learn, not die.

As I write this, much is now known about what happened. Two seniors, 18-year-old Eric Harris and 17-year-old Dylan Klebold, both described as "nice kids" and "bright students", packed up 30 or more explosive devices, two sawed-off shotguns, a 9 mm semi-automatic assault rifle, a handgun, and as much ammunition as they could carry, and went off to school with the specific intention of blowing away as many of their fellow classmates as possible. They apparently had a preference -- jocks and blacks -- but judging by the horrific carnage, most anyone who crossed their path turned out to be fair game.

What quickly became the deadliest school massacre in American history was carried out by two young boys who liked to wear black clothes, long trench coats, and make their own sick videos. They often spoke German to each other, listened to hard rock German music, and were big fans of Adolf Hitler. They belonged to what was known at Columbine High School as the "Trench Coat Mafia", a dozen or so self-styled loners and outcasts who apparently felt slighted by the school's other acknowledged cliques, including the jocks, preppies, stoners, intellectuals and freaks.

That is some of what we know, but it's what we don't have a clue about that is really scary. To begin with, where did a couple of teenage boys get the knowledge and materials to construct more than two dozen home-made bombs? Is access to that kind of information really that easy to get on the Internet? And are bomb supplies available at the local hardware store with no questions asked? And how did they manage to spend most of the weekend before the massacre in the Harris family's garage using power tools to make bombs without a parent asking what in the world they were up to? And could we have our stereotypes all mixed up, because isn't this kind of thing supposed to happen in urban schools, and not at a place where the SAT scores are always the highest in the county?

And if study after study tells us that children exposed to media violence are much more prone to commit or approve of violent acts, then why do we keep sending our kids off to movies where dozens of human beings are snuffed out and the bullets tear through their flesh in slow motion? And shouldn't we be just a little bit concerned with the fact that by the age of 12, a typical American child has witnessed upward of 8,000 media murders?

And if students in the high schools our children attend make themselves up to look like demons, put swastikas all over their clothes, and spew out racial hatred when they walk down the halls, shouldn't they be asked to knock it off? And shouldn't parents who allow their children continuous access to violent video games be aware that they are committing a form of child abuse?

And what about this ridiculous love affair this country of ours has with weapons, especially handguns? Did you know that Americans have 222 million guns in their possession? Is that really what the founding fathers envisioned when they said we needed "a well-regulated militia"? And did you know that when the National Rifle Association was asked what that politically powerful organization thought about what had happened at Columbine High School, a spokesman said, "No comment -- it doesn't have anything to do with us" (new NRA president Charlton Heston did suggest that events like this could be prevented in the future if we just put enough armed guards on school campuses).

And when are schools everywhere finally going to start cracking down hard on bullies (be they jocks, punks, or idiots in trench coats) who could care less about getting an education and spend most of their school day harassing and preying upon the weak and different? And when parents see Nazi and other hate literature lying around their child's bedroom, shouldn't a little light go off in their heads? And should Internet service providers allow kids to create their own hate-filled Web sites, as Eric Harris did? And did you know that some 15 million American children are online (half of them under the age of 13) and that most parents are clueless when it comes to supervising their child's Internet activities?

And finally, wouldn't it have been nice if the parents of Eric Harris and Dylan Klebold, who somehow managed to raise a couple of heartless butchers, hadn't been in such a hurry to hire lawyers and issue their "please respect our privacy" statements?

Violence is a learned behavior, and every politician, businessman, movie star, movie maker, sports hero, teacher, parent, student, and citizen of this country needs to stand up and say enough is enough, and then back those words up with meaningful deeds.

As educator Robert Coles once said, "In this life we prepare for things, for moments and events and situations. We worry about wrongs, think about injustices, read what Tolstoi or Ruskin has to say....then, all of a sudden, the issue is not whether we agree with what we have heard and read and studied -- the issue is US, and what we have become."

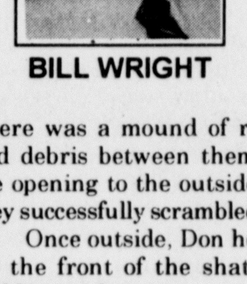
Guest Commentary:

Violence: everyone's problem

By Bill Wright

Editor's note: Bill Wright and his family have lived in West Sacramento since 1964. In June of 1995, only a few months after the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building was destroyed, Bill traveled to Oklahoma City on business and toured what was left of the ruins. Afterwards, he met with one of the survivors and what follows is his notes of that meeting and also some thoughts on the increasingly violent American society we all live in.

With another anniversary of that tragic day in Oklahoma City having just passed, and with the horrifying events at Columbine High School in Colorado still in the news, it is Bill's belief that we all need to be reminded that senseless violence is something we all must be vigilant about, and that it can touch any of us, at any time, as it did Don Rogers on April 19th, 1995.



BILL WRIGHT

Before it was destroyed, Don Rogers was the GSA (General Services Administration) building manager for the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. His entire career had involved the building, from the blueprint stage all the way to April 19th, 1995, when it was blown up by a powerful bomb.

On the day of the blast, Don held a 9:00 a.m. meeting in his office. It ended after an hour and the participants departed. As he and a co-worker waited for the elevator to arrive, there was an incredibly loud explosion. The force of the blast bent Don forward toward his companion and there was suddenly thick, black smoke everywhere. He grabbed his work friend's arm and they started feeling their way towards the back of the building, knowing that the passage to the front of the building was blocked because no sunlight was getting through.

They heard two women screaming and worked their way towards them. Twice, enveloped in blackness, Don's head painfully crashed into unseen obstacles before he finally reached the two women. Together, they all groped their way through the smoke and blackness, which seemed like it was going to overcome them before they could reach safety. Soon, however, they reached a point where a glimmer of light could be seen and they struggled towards it. There was a mound of rubble and debris between them and the opening to the outside, but they successfully scrambled over it. Once outside, Don headed for the front of the shattered building and saw a wave of federal workers from nearby buildings running toward the Murrah building in an attempt to find and aid survivors. Firemen and police arrived quickly and promptly cordoned off the area to keep people out.

One of Don's work tasks had been to visit the Murrah building's day care center each day in order to monitor its operation, and as he looked to where it had been, a woman standing near him was screaming "Where are the babies?" over and over. He reluctantly told her, "The babies are all gone." The youngest children were at the front of the building on the second floor and had no chance. The older ones were further back but most of them also had no chance.

Don tried to go back into the building, but was sent to the hospital, where he was treated for a long gash on his leg and other injures. After he was released, he returned to the site of the explosion and helped with identifying victims. He spent many days with such terrible tasks. Looking at the remains of the building, it seemed impossible to Don that he could have been where he was at the time of the blast and survived.

Don relies upon his religion and his church, and they have helped him through this experience. He is a compelling speaker and has recovered much of his ability to lace his remarks with humor, but he is still working his way back to normal. Recovery from the effects of his experiences started rapidly, but soon hit a plateau where progress has been slow. Like all victims of senseless, random acts of violence, he will never be the same again.

On one level, what happened to Don is a traumatic experience that could have happened most anywhere. On another, one can't help but wonder if there is any way to avoid such tragedies.

We can work to be aware of (and wise about) the "circles" we draw. We can be part of the "village" that it takes to bring up the next generation. Our world involves great numbers of people and requires specialization and centralization. Still, in the end, it is our family, friends, neighbors and coworkers (changeable as they may be in today's mobile society) who make us human, who make the critical difference, and who are both our blessing and our responsibility.

Local teen honored

Elise M. Lindsay was officially named Miss Junior West Sacramento, Young Teen on Dec. 16, 1998. She is the daughter of Stuart and Jacque Lindsay and sister of Kevin Lindsay of West Sacramento. Elise participates in dancing and is also very active in the community, teaching and sharing the Bible with interested parties. She also maintains a 3.5 GPA, and has received honors for playing the flute and piccolo. Elise is involved in modeling and soon hopes to begin modeling for local major department stores.

Elise was picked among the top ten percent of California. She had been given the opportunity to select which city she wanted to represent – either Sacramento or West Sacramento. She selected West Sacramento as it is the city in which she resides, and because she wanted to bring more attention to the community. She now goes on to represent West Sacramento in the State Finals, to be held July 15-17 in Orange, California, to compete for the title of Miss Junior California. From there, the winner goes to Florida to compete in the Miss Junior America pageant.

Elise would like to thank the following sponsors for their support: Home Port Realty, Fid's Smog & Tune, Kane Realty, West Sacramento Land Co., and West Sacramento Grocery Outlet.

RC baseball tops Marysville, Lindhurst

From Chuck Robinson

Last Tuesday, River City High School's varsity baseball team beat Marysville in an exciting game, 8 to 6. RC trailed until the sixth inning. Marysville scored 1 run in the first and 5 in the second, with 6 runs on 3 hits and 3 errors. RC scored 1 run in the first, 2 in the second, 1 in the fourth and 4 in the sixth, with 8 runs on 12 hits and 2 errors. Bobby Flippin was the winning pitcher with Eric King doing the catching. Hitting was Brady Tacdol, 1 for 3; Morton Geivett, 1 for 4, 1 RBI; Brian Schrimsher, 3 for 4, 2B, 1 RBI; Ronny Crayne, 1 for 4; Arnold Mendes, 3 for 4, 2B, 2 RBIs; Tommy Gamboa, 1 for 4; and Eric king, 2 for 3, 2B, 3 RBIs.

On Thursday, the Raiders beat Lindhurst 7 to 6 in another close game. Lindhurst scored 3 runs in the first, 2 in the second, and 1 in the fourth, with 6 runs on 12 hits and 1 error. RC scored 2 runs in the first, 1 run in the second, 1 in the third, 1 in the fourth, and 2 in the sixth, with 7 runs on 7 hits and 1 error. Crayne was the winning pitcher, with King doing the catching. Hitting was Tacdol, 3 for 4; King, 1 for 3, HR, 2 RBIs; Mendes, 1 for 3, 1 RBI; and Hector Yabes, 2 for 4, HR, 3 RBIs. RC's record overall is 14-4; in league play, it is 7-0.

RC plays at home against Colfax today. On Thursday, April 29, they play at home with Golden Sierra. On Tuesday, May 4, the Raiders travel to Colfax. Game time for all games is 4 p.m.

Raider tennis dominates at invitational

From River City High School

It was another successful week on the courts for the River City High School Tennis Team, with league wins over Marysville 7 to 2 and Lindhurst 9 to 0. And on the weekends, the Raiders dominated the 22nd Annual Quincy Invitational Tournament, demolishing some of the best small school teams from the North Section.

In the Golden Empire League matches, the Raiders traveled to Marysville on Tuesday and struggled at times before defeating the fast-improving Indians. Pushed to the limit, both the #1 boys doubles team of Prak Pich and Huy Truong and the #2 girls doubles team of Erin Cheechov and Keonakone Lattasima prevailed in 7 points to 5 tiebreaks. Aaron Potnick won a tight 6-4, 7-5 #1 boys singles match and #2 girls singles player Loan Nguyen prevailed 7-5, 7-6 with a second set tiebreak score of 7-2.

On Thursday, there were no close matches at Lindhurst, as the Raiders rolled to their fifth shutout in eight G.E.L. contests. Khampheng Insixiengmay led the way with a 6-0, 6-0 win at #2 boys singles and Cheechov and Lattasima allowed just one game to their opponents in their #2 girls doubles match.

Friday and Saturday brought the annual trip to the Quincy Invitational where RC scored an amazing 66 points out of a possible 70 to bring home the championship trophy for the fourth time in four attempts. The second place trophy went to the host Trojans who had 43, while Chester and Etna tied for third with 20 points each. (Two points were earned for each match won in the main draw and one for a win in the consolation bracket.) Dunsmuir, Mt. Shasta, and Portola rounded out the field along with the Quincy junior varsity team.

The tournament is contested in five events, each containing two entrants from every school – girls and boys singles, girls and boys doubles, and mixed doubles. In all but the girls doubles event, it was a Raider against a Raider in the finals. Khonesavanh Lattasima took the girls singles championship over teammate Loan Nguyen. Seeded #4, Lattasima downed the topseeded Mary Jane Kreuger of Quincy in the semifinals, while Nguyen defeated the #2 and #3 seeds along the way to her spot in the final. The two then paired up for doubles and reached the final before falling to Kreuger and Alia Mrowczynski of the Trojans. The Raiders other girls team, Sue Yang and Sokpin Phoung also fell to the Quincy duo, in the semifinals.

In the boys events, Insixiengmay upset the #1 seed Tom McKinley of Chester in the quarterfinals en route to the final. Once there, he faced his teammate Aaron Potnick, the #2 seed. Potnick prevailed for the title and then the two joined forces to defeat fellow Raiders Prak Pich and Huy Truong in the doubles final. Just as Nguyen had done in girls singles, Pich and Truong upset the #2 and the #3 seeds on their way to the championship match. In mixed doubles, Yang and Pich defeated Truong and Phoung for the title.

This week, the Raiders take on Lincoln and Golden Sierra in the G.E.L. with the biggest match of the year to date looming next week against Colfax on Tuesday. RC is 8 and 0 in the G.E.L. while the Falcons have lost only to the Raiders thus far. The match is at River City on Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.

Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento Kings (22-23), who are playing without Chris Webber, are still alive and well as they continue their fight for a playoff spot. The Kings are tied with Minnesota for the eighth and final entry into the NBA championships. Seattle and Golden State are a couple games back with five games remaining in the season. The Kings reached the .500 mark on Saturday night for the first time in over ten years, with their victory over Dallas. The Kings, who are in trouble, played without Webber in Oakland on Monday and were mugged 114-89. The 25 point margin of defeat was the largest of the season. No Webber - No playoffs!!

The Kings still have five games remaining this season. The Kings will host San Antonio on Tuesday, then the Clippers come to town on Thursday, and will finish the home stand on Sunday against the sixth seeded Phoenix Suns (24-21). On Monday, May 3, the Kings travel to Denver for the their last away game but return home to finish the regular season on Wednesday, May 5 against Vancouver. This will be the game that puts the Kings into the Playoffs!!

Minnesota, also has 5 games remaining but they play Phoenix, Golden State and the Los Angeles Clippers at home but their two away games will be against Houston and Phoenix.

Seattle, also has a tougher schedule than the Kings with the Jazz, Lakers, and the Trailblazers as their killer opponents. Tickets to the Kings games are still available!

The Giants (13-7) pitching staff is keeping them in first place as they travel back East to play in Montreal, New York and Pittsburgh. Let's hope the pitching holds out! The A's are at home this week hosting the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox.

Good news for boxing fans! Willie Jorrin has signed to fight for the North American Boxing Association title against Aristead Clayton (28-1). The 12 round title fight will be televised live from the Radisson Hotel in Sacramento on ESPN2.

See ya next week!!

The following events are currently being offered by the West Sacramento Senior Center. The center is located at 664 Cummins Way. For more information, call 373-5819.

Step Out for Senior Citizens

The senior center will be joining nearly 1,000 centers serving seniors in California on Sat., May 15, at 9 a.m. to "Step Out for Senior Centers." Senior centers in communities up and down the state will hold this special walk to promote statewide awareness of the many services, programs and activities senior centers offer. Participation is open to older adults, their families, and community members of all ages to promote a positive image of aging. The event will be held on the West Sacramento River Walk. On site registration 8-8:30, followed by a warm-up, guest speakers, entertainment, prizes, refreshments and fun until 12 p.m. Free t-shirts to the first 100 on site registered walkers.

Camcorder Workshop Series

Here's your chance to learn and share ideas about shooting better home videos, and having fun doing it. The workshops will include basic camcorder techniques, lighting, special effects, composition, planning, etc. More advanced techniques will be covered as determined by individual needs and interest. Class is held on the third Tuesday of each month at the senior center, 1-3 p.m.

Special Speaker on Diabetic Medication

Pharmacist Gary Thomas will be our Diabetic Support Group speaker for May 12 at 1:15 p.m. in the classroom at the senior center. Come learn recent information about new medications available, as well as mixing drugs with other medications. Please call if you will be attending.

55 Alive Driving Class

Many people consider their car a symbol of independence, and are reluctant to give up the privilege of driving. However, with diminishing hearing, eyesight and reflexes, there comes a time to accept the fact that driving must be discontinued. Two questions arise: (1) How does one know when to quit? (2) How does one adapt to changing physical abilities in order to delay decision? AARP offers the 55 Alive Mature Driving Course so that older drivers can learn to compensate for age-related changes that affect their driving.

The eight-hour class will be held May 25 and June 1 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the center.

The water's fine. . .

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Kindly reconsider

Sometimes a "pro-growth" and "pro-business" vote can backfire.

Two weeks ago, the West Sacramento split 3-2 in favor of allowing a substantial asphalt and rock recycling facility to set up camp for at least five years on 15th St. near Jefferson Blvd. The city's general plan calls for the site to transition away from industrial uses and towards uses more compatible with the city's waterfront downtown aspirations. But three members of the council believed it was okay to push back these hopes, and that it was just fine to bring the new industrial facility to a place close to local residences.

One of the reasons the council majority did this was to accommodate the landowner in his desires to open a local business.

But think for a moment about the impacts (beyond the effects on the neighbors, which would be significant). What chance does the city have of attracting more desirable uses to this area if it allows a new asphalt crushing plant? What businessperson will bring a more desirable and urban use to a site near the plant?

And how about Southport? West Sacramento plans thousands of new homes in the Southport region, and potential buyers from outside the area will take either of two routes when they visit the new construction and decide whether to become West Sacramentans. They will enter either through the industrial port area and its new Palamidessi Bridge, or via the Jefferson Blvd. corridor – which is lined with aging strip malls and now a potential new concrete plant.

Won't this journey discourage home buyers -- particularly those who might buy at the higher price points most needed? Or will the new concrete plant instead add yet another home sale challenge to a region facing image problems and school district concerns?

Clearly, the new plant brings too much baggage, even before its impacts on nearby neighbors is considered. Approving it dampens other planned growth in West Sacramento and becomes an "anti-growth" decision. This is one of those times when the best way to promote growth and development is to regulate it to high standards.

The issue returns to the city council on May 12. The three council members who voted "yes" to the plant need to be gently told that the city staff, the city planning commission, and their own two colleagues on the city council were right: there is no room for a concrete and asphalt recycling plant on 15th Street.

Letters to the Editor

Beware habitat loss

In reviewing the proposed changes to the Natural Resources chapter of West Sacramento's General Plan, some subtle but potentially critical shifts in policy have been noted. In general, a softening of the language of the original plan is observed that could open the door to further loss of habitat with resulting decline in the population of wildlife.

You and persons in this community interested in preserving the natural beauty we in West Sacramento are fortunate to have, are encouraged to examine the proposed revisions to the Natural Resources chapter of the Plan, paying close attention to the changes suggested in Section VI, Natural Resources Goals and Policies.

Goal C deals with protecting native plant and wildlife habitat in West Sacramento. Typical of the changes of concern is the change in Policy No. 4. The existing document states the "City shall ensure no net loss of riparian or wetland habitat acreage..." The change would read "The City shall support mitigation measures..." There are other instances in which similar changes present a weakened stance to habitat and wildlife protection. It is this writer's concern that the proposed changes could open the door to habitat-eating projects that would negatively impact species already listed by the State as threatened.

A copy of the 1999 General Plan Update can be found in the Arthur F. Turner Branch of the Yolo County Library.

Stadium delaying tactic

If attorney John M. Latini believes it's O.K. for him to file a "delaying tactic lawsuit" against West Sacramento to prevent us from building the Triple-A ballpark without telling us who he represents, is he not saying it's O.K. for many of us to sue him without naming names (for millions, of course)? No chance his clients could include developer Greg Lukenbill and/or the City of Sacramento, since the latter recently gave (back) all of that land near Arco Area – including a partially built baseball park – to the former? Our environment was allegedly a concern.

What a coincidence!

Last week our City Council tentatively approved by a 3-2 vote an asphalt and concrete recycling plant to be located at 15th Street and South River Road. Since that plant will be south of the proposed Triple-A baseball park, could not strong south winds cause some of that "asphalt/concrete dust" blow into the ballpark (or places in between, like the on/off ramps of the Pioneer Bridge)? Could such dust be hard on one's eyes and nose, etc., if we live west of planned plant?

Or how about boats on the river or those working/living directly across Sacramento River when westerly winds prevail? (Would such dust add to quality of river water for consumption? Hardly.) I understand May 12 will be the final hearing/approval date and we will not have a May 5 City Council meeting. And get this: I read that we already have such a plant beneath the Pioneer Bridge, but hopefully its conditional use permit will expire about the time the Triple-A baseball park opens. We don't need anymore of Sacramento's "n.i.m.b.y." businesses on our side – right?

CommuniCare Health Centers longevity and success in serving the health care needs of local, low-income children and families depend in large part upon volunteers. As this is Volunteer Week, we chose to place an ad listing each volunteer by name as a way in which to recognize and thank them for all they do for the community. There are more than 200 volunteers who unselfishly donate their time and expertise to help us deliver needed care to those among us who may not otherwise receive services. These volunteers are important to CommuniCare, to our clients and, we believe, to everyone in Yolo County.

In our effort to pay tribute to these good neighbors we left one wonderful woman off the list. Cynthia Belgum, DDS has been volunteering for CommuniCare's Dental Program since the day it began in 1990. For nearly ten years she has come in once a month, every month, to provide treatment for our patients from 6 p.m. until the last one has received care. Like other volunteer doctors, she works a full day in her own practice before staffing the evening dental clinic.

We most sincerely apologize for the omission. We value Dr. Belgum as a professional and an individual committed to helping those we serve.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered seventeen feet four inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday.

Landowners of West Sacramento reclamation district, or District 900, are now being called on to pay interest on bonds that will mature in a few years from this date. Yesterday Secretary A. F. Turner of the West Sacramento Company reported that the response to notices sent out some time ago was splendid, but that there are a few who have yet to come to make payments of this interest charge.

Mrs. Thomas McAnulty and Mrs. J. H. Shea, with the latter's two children, were visitors at West Sacramento yesterday and they expect to remain here until the end of the week. Later on they expect to make their permanent homes in this section and have under consideration now plans for their homes.

Miss Cecelia Lowe returned to her work in West Sacramento headquarters Monday after being confined to her home for a few days with influenza.

According to McNally & Partridge, owners of the West Side Auto Camp, tourist travel is increasing so rapidly they cannot possibly accommodate those who are coming from the north now. From the south, also, many parties are arriving so that the auto camp is filled every night. So great is the pressure that McNally & Partridge are about to add to their accommodations in the way of new cottages and new tents.

At the Pereira home last Wednesday evening a surprise party was tendered Miss Pauline Pereira on the occasion of her twenty-first birthday. First a theater party took up a great part of the evening, after which a great feed was spread at the Pereira home and enjoyed by Mrs. L. Paul, Mrs. R. Gracie, Mrs. C. Powers, Miss June Bell, Miss Stella Gracie, Miss Pauline Gracie and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pereira. Several magnificent presents were handed the young lady, among which was an elegant cedar chest given her by her mother.

General gasoline is becoming a staple article in this section of Yolo County to such an extent that customers are demanding a supply. Larkin Mosher is the latest to put in a supply at his service station in the West Sacramento Auto Camp.

The soft drink stand at the Fraser & Doyle service station has been opened again with a very pretty young lady in charge. In addition to the supply of soft drinks, a stock of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, ice cream and other delicacies has been added.

Drew Alger, a dairyman of West Sacramento, who was arrested on complaint of Elizabeth Park for nonpayment of wages, apperaed before Judge Barry last Monday and was given his liberty on a cash bail of $50.00. His trial will come up on Monday, May 4.

Complaint has been filed in Judge Barry's court against J. F. Brown by Theodore Pilz of Sacramento on a charge of reckless driving. Some day last week Pilz, with three friends, were on their way to Davis when Brown, driving eastward toward Sacramento, attempted to pass another automobile and in doing so collided with the automobile driven by Pilz. The result was that Pilz's car was ditched and badly wrecked and he suffered a broken arm. It is believed that Brown was intoxicated at the time of the mishap. He has not yet been arrested but the license number of the car he was driving was taken by the companions of Pilz and he is now being sought by the authorities.

Summoned before Judge Barry last Tuesday for nonpayment of wages, Peter Masloff of Oak Park pleaded guilty to failure to pay Peter Kalemovsky the sum of $10 which was claimed to be owing. Judge Barry sentenced him to pay the full amount of $10, but gave him three months to do so in installments.

At the Everaert home in West Sacramento last Saturday evening a home party was in progress during the greater part of the evening. The occasion was the celebration of Mr. Everaert's birthday, he having passed his 31st year. Many of his co-workers were invited to be present and a wonderful feed was served at a late hour. Dancing and cards took up a great part of the evening. Among those present were F. T. Willy, Jack Foley, Henry J. Ravini, Stanley Craig, Wilbur Herzog, Miss Ethel Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hocking of Moraga, I. W. Harry, Miss Olive Cordoza, C. D. Larson, C. Ackerman, T. Pearson, S. Eustace, Geo. Lucich, Jr., R. Greenberg, Annabelle Norman, Ruth McGowan and Arthur Everaert.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cameron, Miss Clara Conrad and the Misses Anderson spent Sunday in Stockton visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jasper.

Mrs. William Gordon and Miss Ethel and Floyd Cook came from Napa to be the guests over the week-end at Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cook's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dupzyk and Mrs. May Barbarie spent Sunday in San Francisco.

Mrs. Hallie Simmons of Grimes was a week-end visitor at the home of Mrs. Hattie Stewart.

Mrs. Archie Bryan and children of West Sacramento returned home after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas.

The teachers of the Washington grammar school will give a dance in the school May 15 to raise funds to purchase refreshments to be served pupils on the closing day of school. The dance was planned at a special meeting of parents and teachers. There will be a morning track meet at the picnic.

Jack Dassonville spent Sunday in San Francisco with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Rollins, Mrs. Effie Anderson and S. A. Rollins Sunday attended a picnic near Lincoln.

Supervisor Henry Buckingham has returned from a week's business visit in Los Angeles. En route, he visited relatives in Merced and Stockton.

LEINBERGER ESTATE VALUE NOW PLACED AT ABOUT $50,000

Woodland, April 28.—The late William J. Leinberger, former Yolo County supervisor, who died at his Broderick home March 31, 1924, is valued at approximately $50,000, with the appraised value of $41,622.31, according to the inheritance tax report filed this morning in the office of the county clerk by Inheritance Tax Appraiser James L. Hare. The inheritance tax on the estate is $789.51.

The various legatees of the estate and the legacy to each are as follows: Walter Leinberger, nephew, $13,173.34; Louisa Smith, sister, $13,109.47; Mrs. C. Factories Seem To Take Shine To Westgate District That Promise Bright Future in Returns

Negotiations are under way at the present time for the establishment of a factory for automobile accessories in Westgate.

The plans are not exactly completed at this writing but are under consideration and are expected to be closed before the end of next week.

The site consists of about five acres located on the line of the San Francisco-Sacramento Short Line Railway immediately north of the location selected last week of D. Carmichael & Son of Oak Park.

The deal is practically certain to go through because already plans have been drawn for the construction of a concrete building large enough to accommodate the employment of about 300 men.

The factory is now located in the southern part of the state and has been in existence for several years, but owing to the encroachments of business the site is considered too valuable to hold for factory purposes.

When it became necessary to look for a new location the owners investigated many locations throughout the state and finally decided under the persuasion of Thomas McAnulty to look into the Westgate locality.

It took some time to decide on this question but now the deal is practically complete with the result that final announcement will be made within the next ten days.

The factory turns out accessories of all kinds for the use of automobiles. During the past ten years it has been a wonderful success in the location it now occupies and would not move were it not that more space is needed for additional employes, machinery and appliances.

The fact that Westgate has available transportation by water, rail and two transcontinental railroads decided the question in favor of Westgate.

These facts are leading many more factory owners to consider locations in Westgate and already inquiries have been made for a site for a lumber yard and another for a sawmill that is now looking for a location.

It must be remembered that the Westgate properties are divided into three distinct varieties, residence, commercial and industrial. These sections are entirely separate and distinct, thus leaving the residence section complete separation from the other districts.

At the present time home building is going steadily forward with not less than five homes in course of construction. Early next Monday two more homes are to be started and a large store of brick construction for which the foundation is already excavated, will be commenced.

This store building measures 35x150 feet and will accommodate seven stores measuring 20x35 feet.

The beauty of the division of properties in Westgate is that the factories will bring the workers who will make their homes in the district and these in turn will maintain the business district. The combination seems to be an excellent one, yet neither district interferes with the other in a detrimental way.

Vicious Reports Indicate Very Rotten Motives

Reports circulated around Washington during the past week seem to have confirmation in publications made in other papers that are entirely false.

In the Mail of Woodland under date of April 28 and under the heading "New Battle Is Planned by Club," the report was published that Chinese gambling had again started in "Broderick" after a lapse of two months.

As a matter of fact gambling had not started on that date and has not started in any of the "Chinese dens" of "Broderick."

It would seem that the Mail gets these reports either by telephone or out of the air and are evidently sent to the Mail with the open intention of injuring the town of Washington and the people of the town.

On account of this injury several of the property owners have started a quiet investigation and it has been found that certain parties in the employ of Sacramento gamblers make it their business to spread these reports so that "no business, in the gambling line, can cross the bridge."

This report was current about two months ago but was not investigated at that time.

It seems that the Sacramento gamblers lose a good deal of trade to the games "across the river."

The only remedial steps that could be taken was publicity in the Woodland papers or the Sacramento papers and many telephonic messages that were false in fact were sent to the Woodland papers and the Sacramento dailies.

The effect of this was that public attention was centered on the games "across the river" while no publicity was directed at the games running in Sacramento or Woodland.

The Independent has not been able to find out who has been doing the telephoning to the Woodland papers and the Sacramento papers, but the reports above mentioned seem to have confirmation in lapsed facts.

The understanding is that some individual is being paid a weekly sum to keep the papers informed of what is going on "across the river." For this service that individual gets a weekly meal ticket or some other small premium.

Residents of Washington are very sore at the publicity given the town under the name of "Broderick" by the Woodland papers.

During the last week several distilleries were taken up five miles south of Washington, yet Woodland papers and Sacramento papers told their readers that the distilleries were taken up in "Broderick."

Then again, a resident of Riverbank cut up a terrible fuss one night last week. He threatened his wife with a shotgun and even threatened Constable Wilson with a loaded shotgun. He broke down the furniture of his house, smashed the windows, breaking the pictures and raised Cain in particular. Finally he was subdued by Deputy Constables Jed Lee, C. A. Newton and Constable Wilson.

But the Woodland papers and the Sacramento papers told their readers that this occurrence took place in "Broderick."

The story concerning the gambling question above narrated has not been confirmed by the Independent but steps are being taken by some property owners of Washington on the quiet to verify it.

Balancing jobs & housing

From Tom Stallard
Yolo County Supervisor

West Sacramento is in the unique position of having more jobs available in the community than there are available workers. In fact, as of the year 1997 (which is the most recent information available on the subject), West Sacramento had approximately 11,500 workers and 29,000 jobs.

It turns out that only 3,200 of our workers, or 28 percent of them, actually work in West Sacramento. The rest of the local jobs are filled by people who live outside West Sacramento, but come here each workday. Correspondingly, the remainder of the workers who reside in West Sacramento, more than 8,000 of them, leave the community each workday.

Research shows that some 29 percent of working West Sacramento residents commute each workday to the Sacramento central business district, while 18 percent commute to East and South Sacramento. Another ten percent commute to North Sacramento City and County. The additional 15 percent commute elsewhere.

All this data goes to show how interdependent our region is. It also goes to show the importance of our transportation infrastructure. The fact is, traffic jams on Watt Boulevard impact West Sacramento residents. Overcrowded freeways and congested interchanges are important problems to West Sacramento residents relying on these routes to get to work, as well as those who get to West Sacramento jobs via these roads.

That is why it is important for local elected leaders to be proactive in addressing transportation needs throughout the region. We accomplish this through the Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG). SACOG is not a new level of government, but a place where elected officials from throughout the region meet to discuss transportation problems and potential solutions. We also work together to divide scarce transportation dollars to achieve the maximum benefit in overcoming bottlenecks, support commuter alternatives such as ridesharing and mass transit, and identify future transportation needs.

Our region is growing very quickly. The 1.8 million people that live here today will become 2.8 million people by the year 2022. That date will be here sooner than any of us think. How will we accommodate that extra million people on roads that are already at stressed levels during commute periods? That is our challenge. At SACOG, we are developing data to help us plan our transportation future intelligently.

The facts quoted earlier in this article are part of the data we gather to help us plan. We already know that more than half of working West Sacramento residents work outside the community. While it might be nice if everybody lived and worked within the community, that is not the reality. We need to participate in planning efforts with regional partners to provide the best mix of transportation options and facilities for West Sacramento residents and for all citizens throughout the region.

West Sac's Joyce Miller is one of two honored for local health work

From Robin Cavagnolo
CommuniCare Health Centers

The Yolo County Medical Society and the Yolo County Health Council invites the community to join in tribute to this year's recipients of two very prestigious awards. Local physician and longtime CommuniCare Health Centers' volunteer, Richard Larkey, MD, and West Sacramento community and health advocate, Joyce Miller, will be honored at an awards ceremony on Thursday, May 13, in the Atrium of the Edwin Merwin, Yolo County Administration Building at 625 Court Street in Woodland. The public is encouraged to attend the 5:30 – 7 p.m. presentation and reception.

The 10th Annual John H. Jones Public Service Award was established and initially presented in 1990 to Dr. Jones, founder of CommuniCare Health Center. This prestigious honor pays tribute to professionals in the health field who have dedicated themselves to improving access and quality of care for individuals of limited means. Winters "gentleman farmer" and "retired" family practitioner, Richard Larkey, MD, is this year's honoree.

Larkey has served as a physician in Yolo County for over 36 years. His long-term involvement in our community began as a partner in one of the first primary care practices in Davis with Drs. Thomas Cooper and Neal Vaughn. He and his partners provided direct care to UCD students over the years. Larkey has recently rejoined the Yolo County Health Council, an advisory board on which he has previously served terms on behalf of the community. He has also been a member of the Yolo Adult Day Health Care Board of Directors.

Larkey has demonstrated a respect for uninsured, underserved patients during his volunteer activities for the Davis Community Clinic and i CommuniCare Health Centers. He is committed to providing quality health care to all patients regardless of their ability to pay. His enthusiasm and concern have a direct effect on others who willingly turn his ideas into reality. Roadblocks are somehow circumvented when Larkey feels a need to secure additional care for patients with limited means. Because of his efforts, clinic staff now have more immediate access to laboratory tests for the clinic's patients, particularly children with acute illnesses. Another measure of his commitment was evidenced by his fundraising efforts that help build the modem, new Davis Community Clinic.

Larkey is an individual who finds commonality of interests with patients, staff, medical students and his peer physicians. He has always developed a sincere, sympathetic and caring kinship with his patients and their families. Larkey personifies what every community needs and appreciates in a family physician.

The Ada Merhoff Volunteer Award was created in 1993 in tribute to Ms. Merhoff, a longtime local activist and first recipient of the award. It recognizes local health care advocates and volunteer efforts to increase access to care for Yolo County's low-income population. This year's award winner, Joyce Miller, has dedicated well over a decade to helping others in her adopted hometown of West Sacramento as well as throughout the larger county community.

Primarily focusing on senior health, Miller has been active in a myriad of related causes. Her part-time work as a Licensed Vocational Nurse for the Adult Day Health Care Center in Woodland led to her becoming a member of the Center's Advisory Board and in 19897, she joined the Use Medicines Wisely Program. She was subsequently appointed to the West Sacramento Commission on Aging and is currently serving her third year as chair. She has also been a member as well as past chair on the Yolo County Commission on Aging for over six years, in addition to serving on the Area 4 Agency on Aging Advisory Board.

Miller helped start the Eldercare Pals service providing transportation for the elderly to doctor appointments, grocery shopping, and various errands. In 1989, she was a member of the first class of Senior Peer Counselors in Yolo County, a program for visiting seniors who are lonely and need companionship. Since 1992, Miller has been a member of the Salud Clinic Advisory Board, serving as chair for three years.

Miller epitomizes what is best about volunteerism. The award she is to receive recognizes the years of service, behind-the-scenes but influential approach and her tremendous contribution to the health of both seniors and the West Sacramento community.

One of the best ways to combat high gas prices: just carpool

From Sacramento Area Council of Governments

With gas prices skyrocketing, driving to work can be a major expense for commuters. A quick solution to help ease the cost of commuting is by sharing the ride. Carpooling just twice a week can cut commute costs by 40 percent.

"Ridesharing can prove to be a real cost savings, especially for commuters who travel long distances," stated Tom Stallard, Yolo County Supervisor and Chair of the Sacramento Area Council of Governments.

The easiest way to find a carpool partner is by calling 1-800-COMMUTE and pressing "2" to be connected to the region's Rideshare agency. Commuters are matched based on trip origin, destination, and schedule. A free "matchlist" is either faxed or mailed, giving callers a list of other people with similar commutes.

Sacramento's Rideshare program is operated by the Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG) and serves commuters traveling to or from Sacramento, Sutter, Yolo, Yuba, Placer and El Dorado counties. Additionally, Rideshare works cooperatively with similar agencies throughout the state and can provide help for commuters traveling to or from the Bay Area and the San Joaquin Valley.

Information on transit and other transportation options is also available by calling 1-800-COMMUTE.

Drivers needed

The Elderly Nutrition Program in Yolo County is in need of volunteer drivers to deliver meals to elderly homebound senior citizens in West Sacramento.

Volunteers are needed one time a week, two times a month or as your schedule will allow. Meals are delivered Monday through Friday (except holidays) between 10:45 a.m. and 12 p.m. Volunteers must have valid drivers license, drive your own car (mileage reimbursement upon request) and maintain current car insurance. All other supplies are provided, including training.

The Elderly Nutrition Program is a private, non-profit organization providing over 100,000 meals annually to senior citizens, age 60+, in a friendly congregate setting and directly to the homes of frail elderly shut-ins in Yolo County.

For more information, call the Senior Center at 373-5819, or the Elderly Nutrition Program at (530) 662-7035.
